NEW TOGS FOR EASTER

EASTER heralds the coming of a new season—the brightest of all, and it is quite natural that we should want to "Dress up" for Easter. It is the spirit of the time that makes us all want to put on our best for that day. That is why new clothes, new hats, new shoes, new shirts, new neckwear, etc., commands attention of all men at this time. Our assortments of new spring merchandise are especially attractive. We show the best and newest of everything for men and boys from head to foot.

To anticipate your clothes desires enable you to gratify them economically give you what you want, when you want it, at a price you want to pay.

serve you as we like to be served be guided by the one thought of pleasing you buy reliable goods only—to buy them right sell them right—to serve you right

These are some of our ideals. If you think they are good ones, just call in any day and see how well we succeed in keeping up with our ideals. We're showing a particularly notable assortment of Tweed Raincoats with extra heavy rubber lined.

Little Lamont Boy Recovering

The following letters will be of interest to those who do and kindly interest in the little Lamont boy who was taken to the Winnipeg Orthopaedic hospital some time ago, especially the Women's Institute.

Dr's Letters.

Winnipeg, Feb. 27th, 1920.

Dear Mrs. Lamont:—
Your letter regarding about your little son, received. I wrote, more than a week ago, to Dr. Clarke, giving him full particulars about your boy, and it might be well for you to call in and have a chat with him.

We have met with some discouraging complications in the child's treatment. Following the scarlet fever he had an attack of neuritis in his lower limbs, and this led to a very tender condition so that treatment could not be carried out as we would have liked, and the knees became considerably drawn up and further operation was required. We expect to have the plaster taken off this week, and as soon as we get his splint fitted will try to get him up on his feet.

I have no doubt that he will walk again, although imperfectly. We can only assure you that the very best in our power is being done, and we hope it will not be very long now before we can send your boy home.

Yours very truly,
The Winnipeg Orthopaedic Clinic.

Winnipeg, Feb. 26, 1920.
Mr. D. Lamont,
Didsbury, Alta.

Dear Sir:—

I have been here for several weeks with my little girl to Dr. Galloway for treatment and she happened to be in the same ward as your little boy "Buster," and it was there I learned to love him as he is a brave little fellow; more backbone than lots of men we meet.

I am glad he is in Dr. Galloway's hands, as I believe there is none better on this continent, and I must say right here that Buster is doing fine and is in good spirits. My little girl is able to get around on crutches, but there is a lot to be done to get your little boy that far and that is one reason I am writing you to give you our experience for so know what it is as she was completely helpless at one time. The doctor will straighten him on his feet and help him wonderfully but you will have to spend about three hours each day massaging him to get the flesh and muscle started to grow again.

I will go and see him as long as I am in the city and do all I can to make him happy.

Trusting you will pardon the liberty I have taken and that we may be able to assist you in bringing your little Buster back, able at least to get around on crutches and be a real comfort to you as he is so bright and cheerful.

Sincerely yours,
W. A. Fletcher.

Colgate, Sask.

(Mr. and Mrs. Lamont wish to express their thanks for the many kind enquiries about their little boy also for the help that has been given them in this matter.)

Comment on Current Events

The world was given a glimpse on Saturday, March 13, by the sudden outbreak of a counter-revolution in Germany which has torn the nation in two. The "Free Government" fled from Berlin, Berlin fled to Dresden, and later to Stuttgart. This counter-revolution was engineered by the militarists and the reactionary Prussians, and a new "Imperial" Government set up in Berlin under the chancellorship of Dr. Kapp, who was one of those who opposed the armistice in November, 1918, and wished to continue the war after the abdication and flight of the Kaiser, the late Emperor of Germany. General von Loebe, a Prussian, General von Luttwitz, another Prussian, and one of the military governors of Belgium during the German occupation, was named commander-in-chief of the army.

In an endeavor to defend the interests of the military party, and a possible restoration of the monarchy, the Ebert Government called upon the Socialists and workmen of Germany to declare an immediate general strike and by laying off all means of transport and all industrial and commercial and business generally, cripple and nullify all efforts of the new Government. This was done, and with some effect, but at the time of writing it remains to be seen whether the horrors of civil war can be averted. Conflicts between the troops and the populace are reported from a number of places. The military party has one part and another strategy, like Sparta with the Athenians, and the Socialists with the other, thus leading to the breaking of the German confederation.

Follicott, chief of Ottawa naval group, on the decision as to naval policy to be reached by the Government as a result of the recent report by Admiral Lord Jellicoe. In his report Lord Jellicoe declared emphatically for the establishment of a Canadian navy, and discarded the old idea of contributions of either ships or money to the British Admiralty. He submitted several alternative programs for a commencement in the work of creating a Canadian fleet, these varying from one calling for an annual expenditure of $25,000,000 a year to one providing for an expenditure of only $5,000,000 annually. Which of these to adopt, or whether to proceed with any of them in the present crisis, is the problem before the Government and Parliament. It is generally agreed that cover for the Canadian fleet, in the view of her own status, is in the development of a large merchant marine of her own, provide protection for her own coasts and sea-borne commerce, but the question upon which opinion is sharply divided, both in the Cabinet and Parliament, is whether she should start to make one or the other. The question prospered until national finance was in better shape, and further knowledge is obtainable in regard to the plans of other nations. One thing is generally admitted, and that is that the Canadian fleet, as it is, is not strong to rely solely upon naval protection provided by the already over-manned British navy.

Developments in the controversy, in the United States Senate over the question of ratification of the Peace Treaty and acceptance by that country of full membership in the League of Nations, have been the subject of the most of that body to rally with the result that the whole question will become an issue in the Presidential elections next November, thus largely overruling all purely specific issues.

It is not surprising, therefore, because of the challenge made to Canada's right to full membership and voting powers in the League of Nations by the League of Nations, that the Canadian Government has made it both a condition of the League of Nations that it will never agree to any impairment of its rights as a member of the League, that it will refuse to accept the League amendment, and that it is prepared to withdraw from the League if it is obliged to withdraw from the League.

It is not surprising, therefore, that the League of Nations, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the other overseas Dominions of the Empire support Canada's stand, and it is inconceivable that the League of Nations would support the League of Nations.

Minaid's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia

Petroleum has been known from ancient times. It was put to practical use as a fuel around the Caspian Sea much earlier than elsewhere. Under the name of "Sicilian oil," it was burned in lamps in Rome in the days of Pliny. It entered into use in the east of China centuries ago, and was discovered by the early settlers in America.

Trade Office in Russia Closed
Ottawa.—Owing to the chaotic conditions prevailing in Russia, the Canadian Government has decided to close the office of the Canadian Trade Commissioner at Vladivostok. This closes the last of the Canadian trade offices in Russia, the other two at Petrograd and Omsk having been closed owing to the advance of the Bolsheviks. Some unusually valuable reports have issued from the Vladivostok trade commissioner's office from time to time.

Which?
At an amateur performance an artist gave imitations of several popular actors, one of whom happened to be present.

Afterwards the ambitious amateur sought an introduction to the star and asked hopefully:

"Did you see my imitation of you?"

"I did," replied the great man promptly.

"Then, sir," persisted the aspiring youth, "may I ask you to give me your opinion of my art as shown in that impersonation?"

"Well, my boy," the great man said, "one of us is rotten!"

The Memory That Failed

A well-known preacher was giving one of his stirring discourses, when he remarked:

"Ah! that reminds me of something I shall never forget."

Then he stopped and thought, and, after thinking and waiting a long time, greatly to the astonishment of the congregation, he said:

"Dear me, I can't think what it is!"

SPRING WEATHER HARD ON BABY

The Canadian Spring weather—one day mild and bright; the next raw and misty, is extremely hard on the baby. Conditions are such that the mother cannot make the little or comfort the fresh air so much to be desired. He is confined to the house, which is often over-heated and badly ventilated. He catches cold; his little stomach and bowels become disordered, and the mother soon has a sick baby. The occasional dose of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be given. They regulate the stomach and bowels, thus preventing or relieving colds, simple fevers, colic or any other of the many minor ailments of childhood. The Tablets are sold by all druggists. Ask for a box at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

If Your Food Ferments or Disagrees Just Read This!

Thousands of broken-down dependent dyspeptics have recently been given back their health.

These happy people do not proclaim it was a miracle, but they do say that with a new lease of life—it was simply their common sense in selecting a tried and proven medicine, one specially adapted to their particular ailment.

All those splendid cures were effected by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which beyond all question have a strange power to restore a weak or ailing stomach.

If your stomach is tired and overworked try Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and note the prompt improvement. Pain before or after eating will disappear. You'll no longer have that nervous, gassy, bad tasting sensation. You'll get a real vigorous appetite and digest what you eat. Lots of well digested food to build up, increase your strength, to make you brighter and more ambitious; in a week you'll feel like a different person; in a month you'll be permanently restored.

For folks who are out of sorts, not feeling just up to the scratch, perhaps bothered with headaches or constipation, to those Dr. Hamilton's Pills will prove a boon.

"And I suppose I need not conceal from you," he answered, "what my hopes have been. Those hopes have grown as my acquaintance with you has grown. It is reasonably safe to judge a daughter by her mother, and by that standard Irene is one of the most adorable of young women."

"I am sure you will be attracted in my day," confessed Mrs. Hardy, warming at once to his flattery.

"Have been," said Edward. "Say rather you are. If I had not been rendered, perhaps, a little partial by my admiration of Irene, I could not so readily give my heart to two places, you know. And my deep regard for you, Mrs. Hardy—my desire that you should be spared this—this threatened humiliation will justify me in using heroic measures to bring this unfortunate affair to a close. You may trust me, Mrs. Hardy."

"I was sure of that," she returned, already much comforted. "I was sure of your sympathy, and that you would find a way."

"I shall need your co-operation," he warned her. "Irene is—you will forgive me, Mrs. Hardy, but Irene is, if I may say it, somewhat headstrong. She is—"

"She is her father again," Mrs. Hardy interrupted. "Irene is, and should not attempt that crazy trip of his without me along, but he would go. And this time, Mrs. Hardy, I have brought upon me, and he not here to share it." Mrs. Hardy's tone conveyed very plainly her grievances over the doctor's behaviour in evading the consequences of the situation which his headstrong folly had created.

"She is set in her own mind!" Edward continued. "We must not openly oppose her. You must appear to be resigned, very to the extent of treating, Eiden with such consideration as you can. To argue with Irene, to attempt to persuade her, or to order Eiden off the place, would only deepen their attachment. Lovers are that way, Mrs. Hardy. We must adopt other tactics."

"You are very clever," said Mrs. Hardy. "You have been a student of human nature."

Conard smiled pleasantly. Little as he valued Mrs. Hardy's opinion, her words of praise felt very gratifying upon him. Flatterers are always good against the most insincere of men. I have studied human nature," he said. "The most interesting and the most useful study of all."

"You are a young man in very good luck," he said. "It is useless to argue with Irene—senseless and though she is on a subject like this, we must reach her some other way."

"The way that comes to me is to create distrust. To make her suspiciously distrustful or absurdly suspicious."

There is no middle course, no balanced judgment. Everything is in extremes. Everything is seen through a magnifying lens, or missed altogether. In the trustfulness of very little virtues are magnified to angelic qualities, and vices are quite unimportant. But change that trust to suspicion and a hidden, sinister meaning is found behind the simplest word or act."

Conard had risen and was walking about the room. He was conscious of being regarded as a man of very deep insight, and the consciousness pleased him.

"We must cause Irene to distrust Eiden—to see him in his true light," he continued. "That may be possible. But if it is so low we must, in other course, which I hesitate to mention to you, but which may be necessary if we are to succeed in this fatal infatuation. If our efforts to cause Irene to see Eiden in his true light were to fail, and she were to discover those efforts, she would be more set in his favor than ever. We must play a campaign, one which I have already suggested, and one, if that should fail, to cause Eiden to distrust Irene. No, no," he said, raising his hand toward Mrs. Hardy, who had started from her seat. There must be no vestige of reason except that the end justifies the means. It is a case of saving Irene, even if we must pain her—and you—in the process."

"It's very dreadful," Mrs. Hardy repeated. "But you are very thorough. You have thought to chance I was close to the way with all his big business men?"

"You can trust me," Conard assured her. "There is no time to be lost, and I must plan my campaign at once."

CHAPTER NINETEEN

Conard passed to speak to Irene before leaving the house.

"I owe you my good wishes," he said. "And I give them most to you, although, perhaps, you may not like them as you suppose."

"You are very good, Mr. Conard," she acknowledged.

"I could not wish you anything but happiness," he resumed. "And had I been so fortunate as Eiden, in making your acquaintance first, I might have hoped to introduce you to my business more directly than I can under the present circumstances." He was speaking in a low, seductive tone, and his words sent the girl's blood rushing in a strange mixture of exaltation and awe. The subtle influence implied—that he himself would have been glad to have been her suitor—his vanity, and her answer was due to the success. She felt that she should not listen to such words; she should have been more direct and yet she listened to them, and was not sure that she hated them. She could only say, "You are very good, Mr. Conard."

He pressed her hand at the door and again, at that strange, seductive smile, she turned through her.

Conard proceeded to the business end of the town, well pleased with the evening's events. He found his way impeded by crowds in front of the newspaper office. He took a little attention to the progress of the war, attributing it to the skill of the newspaper interests, and to the manufacture of armaments. To the fact he had not believed that was "human nature," he had added his business acumen. "Even the armaments," he said to himself, "I want to be to frustrate more money out of the taxpayers of Europe." To Conard's mind, the armaments were complete. It covered the whole ground and left nothing to be said.

But tonight he was aware of a heavier tension in the crowded atmosphere. There were good natured crowds, to be sure; laughing and cheering, and making rallies of heavy wit, but they were some way more intense than he had ever seen before. There was no fear of war; there was, rather, an adventurous spirit which seemed to fear that the affair would blow over, as had so many affairs in the past, and all the excitement for nothing. That war, if it came to war, could last, no one dreamed; it would be a matter of a few weeks, a few months, at the most, until the roughly whipped Germany would retire behind the Rhine to plan ways of the recovery, the industry which outraged civilization would demand.

Conard closed his way through the crowd, and he was in a great knowledge, over his equipment of weapons must be seen.

Then he walked to a restaurant where, after a few minutes, he was joined by a young woman. They took a table at a box. Supper was disposed of, and the young woman began to grow impatient.

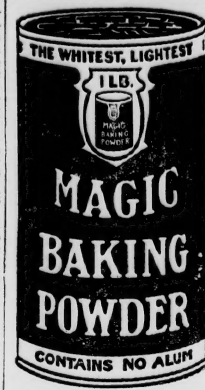

"Well, you brought me here," she said at last. "You've fed me, and you've made me very comfortable, without a purpose. What's the consideration?"

"Yes, I have a purpose," he admitted. "To getting of a little joke, and I want you to help me."

"You're none joking," she returned. "You have got me in it."

"You know Eiden—Dave Eiden?"

"Sure. I've known him ever since he was put out of his business by the war in your room, ever so many years ago. He was for rural for lots of time. Still, Eiden has lots of friends."

—decent friends, I mean."

"I can rather say you know him," said Conard. "But—what's more to the point—does he know you?"

"Not he. I guess he had no memory the next morning, and would have made a point of forgetting me, even if he had."

"That's all right, then. Now I want you to get him down to your place some night to be agreed upon. I'll fix the date later—and keep him there until I call for him, with his money."

"Some joke," she said, and there was disgust in her voice. "Who is it, Eiden, for the difference?"

"Never mind who it is," Conard returned. "I'm paying for it. Here's something on account, and if you make a good job of it, I will be stoned."

She handed him a bill, which she counted and put in her purse. "I need the money, Conard, or I wouldn't take it. Say, don't you know you're wasting your time in this one-horse town? You ought to get into the big city. Your jokes would save make a hit."

This part of his plan, Conard, was a failure. He had even let her see it. In the meantime he took Mrs. Hardy partially into his confidence. He wanted her to believe, however, that Eiden's habits would stand correction, and he had already arranged to trip him in one of his favorite haunts. She was very much shocked, and thought it was very dreadful, but of course we must save Irene. Mr. Conard was very clever. That's what came of being a man of experience—and judgment, Mr. Conard, and some knowledge of the world.

But concerning another part of his programme, Conard was even less frank with Mrs. Hardy. He was clever enough to know that he must observe certain limits, and he was not to be complete. The city was in a turmoil of excitement over the war, but for Conard a deeper interest centred in the post he was harboring under the name of Irene, and he was not to be complete.

At length all his plans appeared to be complete. The city was in a turmoil of excitement over the war, but for Conard a deeper interest centred in the post he was harboring under the name of Irene, and he was not to be complete. NOW RAISES 600 CHICKENS

After Being Relieved of Organic Trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oregon, Ill.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for an organic trouble which had been troubling me for some time. It pulled me down until I could not put my feet to the floor and could scarcely get up. I was on a small farm and raised six hundred chickens every year. It made it very hard for me to do it."

"I saw the Compound advertised in your paper, and tried it. It has restored my health so I can do all my work and I am so grateful that I am recommending it to my friends."—Mrs. D. M. ALBERS, R. 4, Oregon, Ill.

Only women who have suffered the tortures of such troubles and have dragged along from day to day can realize the relief which this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. of thought were bearing the masses along unaccompanied slanders. Society itself was in a state of flux. If he were to strike at all, let the shock fall on the masses.

On this early August night he ascertained that Dave was working alone in his office. Then he called a number on a telephone.

"This is my room," he explained. "You will find him alone in his office. I will be waiting to hear from you at the cry of the latest extra, grant the evening hours in a valiant effort at comfort."

Poring over his correspondence, Dave tried to abstract his mind from the tumultuous doings of these last days. Office organization had been paralyzed; stenographers and clerks were incapable with excitement. It was as though some great excitement had been announced; something wonderful and novel, which diverted the interest from the dull routine of business. And Dave, with his ear cocked for the cry of the latest extra, spent the evening hours in a valiant effort at comfort.

Suddenly he heard a knock at the door; not a business man's knock; not an office girl's knock; a hesitating, timid, apologetic knock.

"Come in," he called. No one entered, but presently he heard the knock again. He rose and walked to the door. Outside stood a young woman. She looked up shyly, her face pale, her hands clasped in a broad hat.

The "Lion D'Aras"

Reuter announces the disappearance of one of the last of the war news papers—the "Lion D'Aras." These war area sheets, which did so much to cheer and encourage the inhabitants of the stricken towns and communities, will be looked upon in the future as one of the most interesting products of the war years. The "Lion D'Aras" appeared in the city at a time when the enemy was within a few hundred yards from the walls. The corner of the paper was the Abbe Gurrin, who continued its editor during the 122 weeks of its existence.

B. C. Dairy Produce

Great Opportunities for the Dairy Farmer in the Province

Interesting statistics of the dairy industry in the province of British Columbia have recently been given by the minister of agriculture.

There are twenty-two creameries manufacturing butter in various parts of the province, in 1918, four cheese factories and three farm dairy factories for manufacturing fancy cheeses. Of dairy handling or distributing milk or cream, or manufacturing ice cream, there are in all 45.

During the past year the creameries produced 1,688,000 pounds of butter, valued at $1,018,192. In addition to this there were 630,000 pounds of dairy butter, giving a total butter production valued at $1,275,692. Apart from the 630,000 pounds of butter, the dairies supplied almost ten million gallons of milk, valued at 217,000 gallons of ice cream. The output of the cheese factories was 304,502 pounds, giving in all a total dairy production valued at $7,148,688.

Great opportunities still exist for the dairy farmer in the province. However, for British Columbia still has to import, among other things, the greater part of her butter supply, as is evidenced by the fact that almost $3,000,000 worth of this produce alone were imported to supply the needs of her population.

Allies Occupy Turkish Capital Without Trouble

Constantinople.—The city was occupied by allied forces under General Sir George H. Milne, of the British army. This long-looked-for military demonstration by the allies against Turkey was carried out with only one untoward happening, a serious clash at the war office, where the Turks resisted the allied troops.

The excitement caused by the occupation quieted down before darkness, which brought absolute calm.

The allies have occupied the ministry of war and navy, and assumed control of posts, telegraphs and telephones, which have been temporarily suspended. Shipping also has been suspended.

The landing of occupation forces was carried out under guns of the formidable fleet anchored in the Bosphorus.

The British dreadnought, Benbow was moored at the Galata Quay, her guns trained on Istanbul. Another man-of-war faced the city in the Golden Horn, while all other warships in the Bosphorus were standing by with their decks cleared for action.

Except in the instance stated, however, there was no resistance. The population, in fact, showed little alarm, nor was there any sign of panic except in one section of Istanbul, as commanders of the allied troops brought their forces ashore.

These forces included four thousand bluejackets and marines from British warships and contingents from all the allies represented. Indian detachments, having Moslems on their ranks, were among the troops taking part.

Comprehensive military and naval plans had been made to carry out the allied measures and precautionary steps taken. A number of tanks and other weapons, regarded as possible disturbers of the peace, were arrested, including the commander of the 10th Turkish division.

The proclamation was eagerly scanned by curious crowds, which after the landing took place wandered about the streets in a dazed manner. The French patrolled Istanbul with Senegalese troops; the British guarded Pera, the suburbs northwest of the Golden Horn; while Italians guarded Serraglio, the portion of Constantinople on the Asiatic side of the Bosphorus.

The flutter that occurred in Istanbul as the troops marched in was by shopkeepers near the war office, where the clash occurred. They closed their shops in their first fright, but speedily reopened them. They also are declared to believe their measures have provided amply for maintenance of security and order in Constantinople, and consider it questionable whether even the so-called Nationalist forces in Anatolia are in a position to attempt anything serious.

She's up and at Her Work Again

THAT'S WHY MRS. KARGUS RECOMMENDS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Lynedoch Lady states that she was so weak she could not get out of bed till she found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lynedoch, via Wolf, Ont., March 22.—(Special)—"I feel like telling everybody about what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for me. This is the joyful exclamation of Mrs. Kargus, a well-known and highly respected resident here. Mrs. Kargus gives splendid reasons why she is so enthusiastic over Dodd's Kidney Pills. "I don't know the cause of my trouble," she says, "but I know I dragged along for over a year. I had a bad pain in my back and I was so weak that I could not get out of bed. My heart troubled me very much and my sleep was broken and unrefreshing."

"I was always tired and nervous, and sometimes I was so bad I thought I could not live any longer. I tried two doctors and they did not do the much good, so I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"They have done me a lot of good. I can do my housework again and I am getting along fine. "Mrs. Kargus troubles are all symptoms of diseased kidneys. That's why she got good prompt relief. Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not tell all kidney ills.

Japs Going To South America

In Future Will Avoid the U.S. for Settlement

Honolulu.—Japanese emigrants in the future will avoid United States territory, going instead to South America, according to a Tokyo wireless message picked up by the Japanese Yabuma. The message, quoting a statement by M. Nagata, president of the immigration association of Tokyo, indicated Japanese emigration to South America probably will centre in Brazil, where a Japanese colony is planned. Nagata is going to South America in the interests of Japan. It is believed that many Hawaiian Japanese will go to Brazil, according to statements of leading Japanese here.

Increase Guard On Ex-Kaiser

Dutch Home of Former German Emperor Has Been Turned Into Prison Fortress

Amsterdam.—Reinforcement of the Dutch guard at Von Bentinck's castle, which since the middle ages has been protected by moats and drawbridges, has made the former Kaiser's refuge a veritable prison fortress, capable of defence even in the unexpected event of attack by raiders desiring to free the exile. The castle is situated in a big square. The four sides are posted, while two of them have additional walls.

Constables and military police patrol the roads night and day. To the right of the main entrance is a small building in which rest reinforcements. Here sentries are on guard. Besides this main entrance, a distance of 130 yards, is another gate, barring an inner driveway to the drawbridge. Here sentries are stationed. Still farther on, where the road bends at another gate, there is also a guard. Then turning to the right, a driveway leads to the terrace on which the castle stands. Police patrol this terrace.

Beyond the dyke in the rear of the castle is a meadowland crossed by ditches and hedges, and in the moats are patrols, particularly watched to guard against the landing of airplanes. So strict has the guard over the former monarch become that J. B. Kan, general secretary of the Dutch government, charged with naming the Hohenzollerns, had to produce a pass before being admitted.

Sir Robert's Health Is Improving Ottawa.—Latest information reaching Ottawa as to the health of Sir Robert Borden is to the effect that the Prime Minister is rapidly regaining his former health and recovery is being maintained. It is stated he will likely be in Ottawa about May 1. As the session is expected to continue for a couple of weeks after that date, the expectations are that the premier will take his place in the Commons Chamber before prorogation.

Armenians Ready to Help Adana, Asia Minor.—The Armenians here have closed their shops and informed the French that they will send armed Armenians to the relief of Hadjio, northwest of Marash, where the Turks are reported to be terrorizing the populace, if the French do not dispatch troops. The villages of Beano and Tchekalana have been overrun and the Armenian inhabitants have fled to Hadjio.

Coal Located at Jasper Park Winnipeg.—Blumhous coal deposits are located nearly 30,000,000 tons, and lying within three feet of the earth's surface, so that it may be loaded on cars as cheaply as gravel can be loaded in a ballist pit, have been located near Jasper Park, according to Geo. McDonald, general manager of the Pacific Coast Eastern Railway, who was recently in the prairie provinces on a business trip.

The Persian Gulf is nowhere more than the fathoms deep.

To Preserve Supremacy Of The British Navy

Long Declares Nation Will Keep Up Power According to Other Countries

London.—Walter Hume Long, First Lord of the Admiralty, told the House of Commons that the government was firmly adhering to the traditional policy that the British navy should not be inferior to the navies of the other powers. Then, alluding to the United States as the only country whose navy approached that of Britain in strength, he said that the idea of competition in armaments between the United States and Great Britain was repugnant, adding: "We hope and believe that if there is any emulation between us, it is likely to be in the direction of reducing that ample margin of naval strength, which we alone possess over other naval powers. This is the foundation of the British naval policy."

Bavarian Diet's New Premier

Kahn Will Fill Position Until New Premier Is Chosen in Next Election

Copenhagen.—According to a Munich dispatch received here, the Bavarian Diet has elected Dr. Kahn premier. Kahn declared himself to be representative of people's sovereignty and said he would hold the place for the premier who is to be elected by the Diet in the next election.

The various political groups, the dispatch continues, declared that executive powers had been restored to the civil authorities; that the imperial and state constitution would be irrevocably respected; and that the full liberty of officials, workers, and employees to unite would be secured.

Visit Ex-Kaiser

London.—A number of Germans of high rank have visited Amsterdam during the last few days, the Central News correspondent at Amsterdam reports. It is not known whether they were sent to communicate with former Emperor William. It is declared, however, that some of them were allowed to talk personally with the former ruler.

Fuel Oil Contracts

Washington.—The shipping board announced that contracts had been signed for more than 12,000,000 barrels of fuel oil for delivery to Atlantic and Gulf ports during the next six months. The contract price ranged from $1.27 to $1.56 per barrel.

New Government Building in B.C.

Vancouver, B.C.—It is reported that the Dominion Department of Public Works will soon commence the construction here of a federal government building, in which to house the various government offices. It will cost $1,000,000.

Like a Tidal Wave

Heart Disease and Nerve Troubles Sweep the Country

Probably at no period in the world's history have heart and nerve troubles been so prevalent as they are today.

The heart can't stand the stress and strain of the busy, bustling age, and the care and worry, the anxiety and activity of business life constitute a serious drain on the nervous system.

The business of this work-a-day world goes with such a rush that the stoutest hearts and strongest nerves break down under the strain. On the first approach of any breakdown, the system Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. The reconstructive power of these pills on the heart and nerve system is simply marvellous.

Mr. W. A. Wright, Hopewell Ave., Ottawa, Ont., writes: "I am suffering for some time with my heart. I consulted a number of doctors, but got no relief. I then took Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I had done for others, who had the same symptoms and thought I would give them a trial. Before my six boxes were completely cured. I am feeling fine now, and can recommend your pills to anyone suffering as I did. Price 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The J. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont."

Kapp Regime Is Ended After Short Control

Opposes Franchise For Jap Veterans

B.C. Politicians of All Parties Protest Against Dominion Proposal

Victoria, B.C.—The government's proposal to grant the franchise to Japanese veterans of the Canadian expeditionary force is arousing strong protest from members of all shades of politics in the house, and when the debate on the motion for the second reading of the new Election Act was proceeded with, it was made clear that when the bill reached the committee stage a determined effort to eradicate the provision will be made. W. J. Bowser, opposition leader, will move an amendment striking out the provision, and he will receive support from some government members, as well as the soldier representatives, the latter being against it.

Paris Threatened With Novel Strike

Citizens Walk and Chauffeurs Will Walk Out

Paris.—Chauffeurs threaten Paris with a novel strike, their demand being a diminution of taxes. Since the law calling for increased taxation went into effect a few days ago, a long line of taxis have been idle, the drivers having taken to walking. Chauffeurs claim their income has been decreased 20 per cent. because of the recent increase in their rates of 300 per cent., and they demand that the rate be brought back to the former level.

Allies Forces On Rhine

American Army of Occupation in Germany Numbers 14,000

Cologne.—The American army of occupation, numbering 14,000 men, is being readied for equipment and orders issued before the German revolution. There have been no movements to reinforce any position or any military activity, except those connected with securing the occupied territory. All allied forces along the Rhine are estimated at slightly over 100,000 men.

Pacific Coast Airplane Sale

San Francisco.—The Pacific Aero club has made an announcement that the first equipped air race ever held on the Pacific coast, will be the Oct. 10th race, to start on April 21.

Frederick D. King, chairman of the contest committee, has mapped out the air route and conditions for the race, which will be from San Francisco to Detroit, with no stops. The return will be over the same route. The distance is approximately 100 miles each way.

Spaniards Seek Hidden Treasure

Madrid.—The newspapers are demanding of the government credit for the commencement of excavations in the province of Leon, to unearth Roman cities, which are believed to be hidden there, and which tradition says contain great quantities of jewels and money and antiquities of great value. The papers desire that the task be assigned to experts who would be capable of making a success of it.

Boy Killed By Classmate

Pueblo, Colo.—Five schoolboys, arrested in connection with the death of Ted, the 11-year-old son of Mrs. M. A. Kuylenstierna, confessed, according to the police, that they killed the boy to death because they were jealous of his high standing in the school the boys attended.

Execution of Alvarez

As a Prieta, Sonora, Mexico.—Jesus Alvarez, formerly a colonel in the army of Francisco Villa, and more recently operating as a bandit and playing a lone hand in the central and southwest sections of Sonora, has been executed by Carranza soldiers, according to military authorities here.

Berlin.—After holding the reins of power for less than five days, Dr. Wolfgang Kapp, self-appointed chancellor and dictator, has retired from office and control. He resigned, and an official communication explained that the chancellor considered his mission fulfilled when the old government decided to meet the most essential demands addressed to it.

He was also moved to this action by the extreme necessity of the Fatherland, which demanded union against the dangers of Bolshevism. The real circumstances of Kapp's retirement are still shrouded in mystery. An important factor undoubtedly is found in the deliberations of the under secretaries and the imperial council, which Major-General von Luettwitz attended. The views of this conference were that both Kapp and von Luettwitz withdrew in order to terminate an intolerable position.

Von Luettwitz agreed to this, but when he returned to the chancellor he allowed himself to be persuaded to change his mind and retain office. To him has been delegated the executive power by the former revolutionary chancellor, and it is difficult to say what will happen now that von Luettwitz remains military dictator of Berlin.

Although the general strike dealt this government a mortal blow, the decisive fact is that Kapp and his supporters had no political prestige, their government being built only on machine guns.

The statements made at these conferences gave a strange impression, and caused a suspicion that the cry of alarm about the Bolsheviks was preliminary to the announcement of retreat. The chief of the press bureau warned the correspondents against stirring themselves up in the streets as a communist revolt was expected hourly.

That any kind of compromise is out of the question now is undoubtedly. President Ebert, of the old government, is anxiously contacted at Stuttgart, where, according to semi-official dispatches, the council of the empire met and unanimously approved the old government and strongly condemned the military coup at Berlin.

Frightened. Ebert was asking: "The White or Red terror? Which?" This was in consequence of an official announcement that the Reds were planning an uprising calling upon the people to save the country from Bolshevism.

Have Their Own Troubles

Washington.—Hastening to clear the way for final action on the peace treaty, the senate choked off a St. Patrick's Day debate on the Irish question by tabling, 54 to 21, a proposal to declare by reservation that Great Britain should proclaim Ireland free.

Young People's Entertainment Great Success

The open house was packed to the doors on Friday night last when the young people of the Presbyterian church put on an entertainment that would be a credit to a much larger town. There was not a hitch throughout the proceedings, although considerable patience and control was demanded of the youngsters, especially in the rendition of "Mrs. Jarley's Waxworks." "Aunt Dinah's Quilting party" also brought down the house and the whole programme was very much enjoyed by the large audience present.

AROUND THE TOWN

Mrs. L. C. Coffey and little daughter, Doris, are spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Osmond.

Constable Sick is still on the job. It's hard to turn a good man down. His faithful service to the town for some years entitles him to a good deal of consideration.

Watch the label on your paper; the last figures denote year your subscription expired. If you are behind please let us have the cash we need it in our business.

The woman's institute will meet at the home of Mrs. Alexander on April 8th, at 2:30 p.m. There will be community singing, a question box and a paper by Mrs. Huget, entitled "Home Talent."

The wintry weather which is continuing so late is still holding up the building of the Didsbury high school. Contractor Morrison is very anxious to get started again, but the weather man objects.

We notice that Bobbie is on the job again.

Where was Dan last Friday?—come dan, give an account of yourself.

Mrs. Cotton is visiting Mrs. L. White. Mrs. Cotton is leaving shortly for the old country.

We all noticed a pair of sharp eyes watching the Parson last Friday night! Badly hit!

What was the matter last Friday night, Harvey? The parson was on the job, so nothing was lacking—or is it a case of waiting until the cage is finished?

The masquerade held at Elkton on Friday night last was a great success, there being some very good costumes. The following were prize winners: Miss Bennett and Mr. Mes. Knight, first prize for best dressed lady, masking as an Indian girl; Bobbie Blair, as best dressed gent, masking as a Turk. Mutt and Jeff were very good, also Chief Bob-oh-Whito of The Windy Trails.
